Paula has been with the University System of Georgia for over 26 years. She began her career at Kennesaw State University in 1995 as a Counselor at the CAPS Center providing personal, career and academic counseling. In conjunction with being a counselor, she was the coordinator of Testing Services. As the demands of Testing Services grew, she transitioned into the position of Director of Testing Services providing professional testing services to KSU and the KSU community. In January 2015, she became the Director of Student Disability Testing Services to lead and expand accommodated testing services. In November 2015, Paula became the Director of Student Disability Services for the Kennesaw campus. Her primary responsibilities are to oversee the daily operations of the Student Disability Services Office on the Kennesaw campus and to support and enhance accessibility across campus. She enjoys working in the Student Disability Services Office because she can assist students to reach their full potential.

Paula has a Bachelor of Arts degree in Psychology from The University of Georgia and a Master’s of Science degree in Counseling and Psychological Services from Georgia State University with an emphasis in Rehabilitation Counseling.
